

2015

Foreward

Follow this and additional works at: <http://elibrary.law.psu.edu/arbitrationlawreview>

Recommended Citation

Foreward, 7 (2015).

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by Penn State Law eLibrary. It has been accepted for inclusion in Arbitration Law Review by an authorized editor of Penn State Law eLibrary. For more information, please contact ram6023@psu.edu.

FOREWORD

The Yearbook on Arbitration and Mediation is an annual publication covering major developments and updates through the fields of domestic and international arbitration, mediation, and alternative dispute resolution. The Yearbook publishes professional articles that are edited by students at the Penn State University Dickinson School of Law. In addition to the professional articles, articles authored by student associate editors complement the professional articles.

Volume 7 of the Yearbook focuses on the major shift the legal sphere has seen towards the increased role of arbitration and mediation. The 2015 symposium titled “What’s Left of the Law in the Wake of ADR” included two panels, one focusing on the major rise in usage of arbitration and the other focusing on the major rise in usage of mediation. These panels included scholars from every corner of the globe and invited discussion on what the future of the law might look like with arbitration and mediation cementing their positions in that future.

On behalf of the faculty advisors and the editorial staff, I sincerely hope that you enjoy Volume 7 of the Yearbook on Arbitration and Mediation.

Evan M. Goldsmith*
Editor-in-Chief
Yearbook on Arbitration and Mediation

* J.D. 2015, Penn State Dickinson School of Law.