

5-1-2006

Institutional Support and Approaches to Integration - Introduction

Mark Tushnet

Follow this and additional works at: <http://elibrary.law.psu.edu/psilr>

Recommended Citation

Tushnet, Mark (2006) "Institutional Support and Approaches to Integration - Introduction," Penn State International Law Review: Vol. 24: No. 4, Article 7.

Available at: <http://elibrary.law.psu.edu/psilr/vol24/iss4/7>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Penn State Law eLibrary. It has been accepted for inclusion in Penn State International Law Review by an authorized administrator of Penn State Law eLibrary. For more information, please contact ram6023@psu.edu.

Institutional Support and Approaches to Integration—Introduction

Mark Tushnet*

We are going to get started. This afternoon's program is described generically as Institutional Support for the Introduction of Comparative and Transnational Material into the First-Year Curriculum. We are going to have a number of presentations beginning with a reasonably extensive discussion of the content and the implementation of the McGill program that Peter Strauss described generally this morning and then followed by discussions of how institutions, law schools, can provide other support for these kinds of programs. So, we will begin with Rosalie Jukier from McGill.

* William Nelson Cromwell Professor of Law, Harvard Law School, and President of the Association of American Law Schools, 2003.

